

Incubator company secures $500K grant

Juxtopia LLC, a startup technology firm housed in a Baltimore incubator, has been awarded a $500,000 grant to develop technology reminiscent of "The Terminator" and turn it into a common cost-saving product.

The company is developing goggles that can train and guide the wearer as they perform complex procedures, superimposing data onto the lenses, CEO Jayfus Doswell said -- like Arnold Schwarzenegger's cyborg vision in the film, he joked. The initial intended market will be auto manufacturers, Doswell said.

Full article at Baltimore Business Journal